The Schoolhouse Theater...

The Schoolhouse Theater at the Noah Webster House & West Hartford Historical Society is used to show the orientation film, "Noah Webster: Schoolmaster of America" and for school and public programs. The early American feel of the room, along with its benches and teacher's desk, help visitors understand Noah Webster's influence on the education of children in the 19th century.

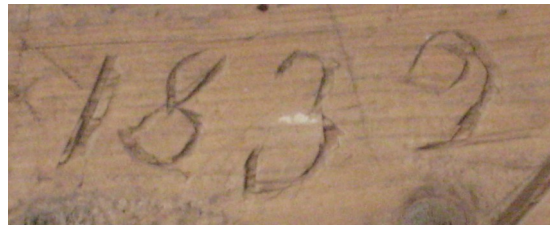

To help the desks and benches achieve an authentic schoolhouse look, you can create "your own mark", we will have the desk permanently carved for you and your message will last for future generations. Each "Make Your Mark" contribution includes a penknife engraved with a commemorative Noah Webster House logo.

Noah Webster himself once said that, "When I was a schoolboy, the greatest part of the scholars did not employ more than an hour in a day, either in writing or in reading; while five hours...was spent in idleness, in cutting tables and benches to pieces..."

Carving Ideas...

Certain images and writing styles were prevalent in the 19th century. Here are some ideas for your carving:
